

MERCURY TRACER

1999

Your day is filled. So is your Tracer.

It seems like you're always in motion.

Heading to the grocery store. Picking up or dropping off the kids. Meeting friends for tennis. Well, here's a car designed to keep up with you. Mercury Tracer. With the kind of features that make it very adaptable to your needs. And with its peppy engine and responsive handling, it's just plain fun to drive. So you won't mind running around when you're running around in a Tracer. Who knows? You may even look for excuses to take it out.

One thing that makes Tracer so much fun to zip around in is its peppy engine. It's a 2.0L split-port induction (SPI) engine with an impressive 110 horsepower. No power shortage here — especially in the passing lane.

You'll notice how easy it is to maneuver your Tracer. That's because of its power-assisted rack-and-pinion steering.

Heading into a bumpy stretch of road? It's smooth sailing ahead with the Quadralink rear suspension and front MacPherson struts along with front and rear stabilizer bars.

Here's something else that adds to the smooth ride. Sedan models are constructed using one-piece bodyside stamping which increases
